Michael D Hill : B-24 Liberators of the 15th Air Force/49th Bomb Wing in World War II (Schiffer Military History) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised B-24 Liberators of the 15th Air Force/49th Bomb Wing in World War II (Schiffer Military History):

Written different from most book in that it tells the story of each aircraft within the wing. The groups are covered in its chapter briefly but the pictures from this book is amazing. After reading it was clear to see the many aircraft losses from accidents and enemy action during WW2. Even to read about some of the aircraft being salvaged for part during WW2 was very interesting as well.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great Reference

ToolBy BobThe Hill/Beitling book in the 15 Air Force, 49th Bomb Wing is an excellent reference for the early stages of a research project. Having the aircraft listed in aircraft number under their organizational grouping makes easy work of locating the history of a particular aircraft and in many cases the crew.2 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy John A NitkaI bought the book for the same reason I used to pay Playboy magazines. The Pictures and Pin-up art.

The first in a planned series that presents the B-24 Liberators used by the 15th Air Force in World War II, noted B-24 historians Robert Beitling and Mike Hill present for the first time the biographies of the individual B-24s used by the 451st, 461st and 484th Bomb Groups of the 49th Bomb Wing in Italy. As much information as is known about the individual aircraft is presented in biographical form: serial number, nickname, how the aircraft received its nickname, number of missions, original aircraft for the groups, and the ultimate fate of the aircraft. The volume will be of interest to historians, veterans and those who are interested in the B-24s that flew in the flak filled skies of the Third Reich.
