

#3520758 in Books 2006-12-13Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 11.16 x .96 x 8.82l, 2.80 #File Name:

1851491589234 pages | File size: 47.Mb

Richard C. Barder

*ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

[Download] The Georgian Bracket Clock, 1714-1830

The Georgian Bracket Clock, 1714-1830

Richard C. Barder : The Georgian Bracket Clock, 1714-1830 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Georgian Bracket Clock, 1714-1830:

Of the many superior clocks made in England from 1714 to 1830, the majority were bracket clocks. In this definitive volume, Richard Barder, a retired dealer, shares his knowledge and admiration for these fascinating clocks. He discusses case making and the specialists linked to the clock maker, the workings of the Clockmakers' Company, the development of the bracket clock in the Georgian period, notable makers, lacquer-based bracket clocks, the export trade, and the purchase, repair and restoration of bracket clocks. The Georgian Bracket Clock has been acknowledged as the best single reference book on the subject and is essential for all dealers, collectors and students of horology.

About the AuthorRichard Barder was educated at Marlborough and then at Brussels University. Following a period as an officer in the Royal Signals he joined a family firm in London and during his time developed an interest in clocks.

He became a regular contributor to 'Clocks' magazine under the pen name Charles Turner.